Learn / Introduction to Git   •••

Deleting untracked files

You recently completed another research project and thought that some of the documents used would be helpful as templates for the mental health in tech project, so you copied the files into the repo.

However, they've remained unchanged since you did this, so you would like to tidy up the repo by removing these files.

You need to select the two commands you would run to find out which files are untracked in your repo and then remove those files.

✓ Answer the question   50XP

Possible Answers

Select one answer

○ `git reset HEAD` and `git clean -n`	PRESS 1
○ `git clean` and `git clean -f`	PRESS 2
⦿ `git clean -n` and `git clean -f`	PRESS 3
○ `git clean -n` and `git reset HEAD`	PRESS 4

💡 Take Hint (-15 XP)   Submit Answer